Physical Description of Site (attach 1 or 2 photos):

This residence is a one-story gable end structure with an attached front porch which extends the length of the entrance facade. The house is a frame structure with drop siding set on piers with entrance steps of oolitic limestone in the center of the entrance facade. The house is set back from the road and landscaped with a variety of trees including palms arranged in a symmetrical pattern with relation to the house, articulating a walkway from the road to the entrance of the house. Approximately halfway between the road and the house is a concrete basin with a recent fountain. The house is a fairly typical example of an early twentieth century frame vernacular residence.
